Introduction

The salient pre-requisite for high quality research in social sciences is the training and capacity building of faculty members who can disseminate their ideas to the research scholars for undertaking quality research in their respective fields. The philosophical basis of Social Science research is common to all social sciences where different subjects have evolved their theoretical frameworks and procedures/techniques of analysis over time. Therefore, an interdisciplinary capacity building programme on Research Methodology is the need of the hour, as highlighted in the New Education Policy of 2020.

Capacity building is a process that inculcates knowledge, skills, and understanding of people on a broad discipline that systematically stimulates and develops the participants' capability. Capacity building enhances a society's human, scientific, technological, organizational and institutional resource capabilities to undertake a task better. This capacity building programme for faculties in social sciences is meant for those teaching and doing research in academic institutions located in rural areas. The Programme has been conceptualized as an introductory module to resolve problems related to quality research and teaching research methods, policy formulation and research writing.

The Objectives of the Programme

The objective of the course is to orient the faculty members of social science

- to develop capacity to undertake their research work with sound objective and methodology
- to train them to develop tools for data collection and analyse them with the help of software.
- to develop their writing skills and make them familiar with ethical issues in social research.
- to provide effective training to the faculty members of the Universities, Colleges and Social Science Research Institutions.

The core objective of the Programme would be to enable faculties to perform their research work scientifically and systematically and to turn their completed research into published materials in the form of books and articles in academic journals.

The module of the Programme:

This programme is designed with an interdisciplinary approach in a Special Lectures-cum-Workshop format enabling participants to discuss and debate relevant issues in social science research, to critically evaluate recent trends & handle datasets and to practice techniques & methods used in contemporary research in social sciences. The course module will inculcate particular emphasis on interactive sessions, exercises and discussions based on five broad areas (i) Philosophy of Social Sciences Research, (ii) Quantitative and Qualitative research methods of Social Science Research, (iii) Data collection and Analysis (iv) Report Writing (v) Publication of Research output.

Participants

The Programme is open to all faculty members of social science disciplines in colleges, university departments and research institutions. Total 30 participants (outstation 20 & local 10) would be selected from across country. The priority would be given to the applicants belonging to the faculty members of Madhya Pradesh and the adjacent state. The selection of candidates will be done as per the ICSSR guidelines. Methodology of Organisation of the Course:

In this training, course orientation would be provided through lectures/fieldwork by senior social scientists and experts in social sciences and research methodology. Group discussions, open question-answer sessions and presentations by participants would be conducted during the training programme.

About ICSSR

The Indian Council of Social Science Research (ICSSR), New Delhi was set up by the Government of India in 1969 as an autonomous organization in order to review, promote, encourage, assist and coordinate social science research in the country. ICSSR advises the Government of India on all matters pertaining to social science research as a measure to promote its utilization.

About IGNTU and Department of Economics

Indira Gandhi National Tribal University, Amarkantak has been established by an Act of the Parliament of India the Act, 2007, and started functioning in July 2008. The jurisdiction of the University extends to the entire country and it is fully funded by the Government of India. The University is located in the tribal dominated areas of Central India, and it has been catering educational and research needs of the deprived sections of society for the last 14 years. Faculty in the University is from 26 different States of India.

The Department of Economics, one of the major constituents of the Faculty of Social Sciences, offers B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. Program. The Department came into existence in 2008 with B.A. (Hons.) in the beginning. The academic Programme mainly focuses on judicious blending of theory and practical aspects of Economics. The thrust areas of courses include Tribal Economics, Developmental Economics, Forest Economics, Labour Economics, Demography, International Economics and Agricultural Economics.

The mission of the Department is to impart knowledge and to imbue the teaching/learning process with a unique blend of intellectual rigor and aesthetic and ethical engagement.

The Department has conducted National Level Seminars, Research methodology programme and acts as the host for Pre and Post Budget discussions in the University.

The IGNTU website provides more information about the programme, the faculty, and the Department's research activities.
